

November 05, 2025: On a Factual Recording of my Daily Life

This is a factual recording of exactly what my daily life feels like under the oppression of a spying machine presence that uses vehicles to interact with our home life.

Every moment of my day is being subjected to a spying presence that monitors our life for a few different variables:

- 1) Movements that can be matched with vehicles (walking to the front area of my house is met with a vehicle that passes the front of my house at the same time; opening the gate to leave the driveway is met with a vehicle that matches my opening of the gate by passing by our front yard; arriving home is met with another vehicle or two that passes by our house as we close our gate; the general impression is that every movement that we are making inside of our home and in and out of our home is being matched by a machine presence that is using vehicles to 'speak' to us in a symbolic way)(this also includes outdoor life wherein I am bombarded with loud helicopters, aircraft flying over the house, and other noises while I go outside to work on our yard - this is especially bad when it is a predictable event - such as a large pile of items that need to be cleaned up - is met with a very large amount of aircraft agitations - that just mysteriously end when I return back inside);
- 2) Any agitations that can be exacerbated (any moments of tension between my wife and I, in fact, any moments of serious conversation are met with some form of agitation force; for example, today was a common occurrence wherein the first conversation that my wife and I had in the morning is interrupted by a loud airhorn furiously being blown by a semi-truck in the near vicinity);
- 3) Any intimate moments that can be used for 'embarrassment' (getting out of the shower, washing my arms in the shower, taking a shit, are all areas that are likely to bring a vehicle noise - especially an aircraft to pass over our home - this is a very frequent occurrence);
- 4) Any symbolic moments of washing the dishes or other household chores that can be interacted with to form some sort of insult of symbolic statement (a yellow bowl is a very common reason for a car to drive past our home; a plastic spoon or fork is symbolic enough for the 'throwaway' tools to be driven past our house; my large chef's knife is almost always certain to draw some vehicle noise; and of course, our small plates that have a small circle 'bullseye' drawing in the middle are almost always certain to draw vehicle noises in my periphery).

These are just some of the forms of acoustic bombardment / spying interaction that I deal with on such a common and daily basis that they are easily translatable to writings by memory.

Additional symbolic interaction is always ready to appear at any moment (slicing the tip off of bamboo shoots was one that the aircraft loved to use as their symbolic 'circumcision' of my life Spain; cutting down our family tree is another, etc).

I am recording this as a public testimony of what has occurred since Donald Trump's team began interacting with my life and attempting to use force in order to mold or curb my political and religious speech.

I have already publicly disclosed the fact that a man confronted me in my front yard with a gun and shot that gun into the ground near my feet. I have posted that video.

But, as I have disclosed - this began with Donald's campaign team spying on my home, interacting with me to become part of their team and then instantly turning on me to boot kick my car when they heard something they didn't like. Well, here's something else you won't like: GET FUCKED DONALD CHUMP - YOU ARE A TINY-MINDED LITTLE BITCH.
